

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A client/server communication framework and method is provided for facilitating server-initiated communications to one or more clients under HTTP protocol. The communication framework provides a mechanism for an application server to voluntarily send data to an application client.